The goal of the project was to fully update the existing 1970's ranch into a new "French Country" style home. The project included renovating the entire main level and then extending a portion of the front of the home 30' forward to give the front elevation more dimension. The exterior design included raising the roof lines to enhance the scale of the home. A front porch and full courtyard were added to give the home a grand entrance.

As you enter the residence, you are received by a grand foyer which sets the tone for the interior design of the home. The master suite was a main focus of this project which included a new 12' X 18' spa style master bathroom. The other main interior focus of the project was the fully renovated family room in which the ceiling was vaulted to a height of 15' and a "high-end, rustic" aesthetic was applied. In the new front addition we located a bedroom which is linked to an existing bedroom by a "Jack-and-Jill" style bathroom and a large study with access to the front patio.
